Cambria Suites by Choice Hotels

Upscale All-Suites Brand Designed to Maximize ROI for Developers

By David Pepper

Capitalizing on strong market demand for a lower-upscale lodging product as well as our own capacity to build brand loyalty in a highly competitive consumer marketplace, worldwide lodging franchise giant Choice Hotels International (NYSE:CHH) has launched Cambria Suites, an upscale, select-service all-suites hotel brand designed to maximize return on investment for developers.

All roads -- consumer preferences, business and leisure travel trends, the short- and long-term development landscape and our own brand portfolio -- lead to the launch of Cambria Suites. The profit potential represented by this brand, in today's marketplace and with the powerhouse support system offered by Choice Hotels, is significant. We are thrilled to welcome this upscale, all-suites product to our portfolio of established brands.

Cambria Suites: The Segment

Cambria Suites' introduction as a lower-upscale lodging product could not be at a more opportune time for development within the segment. According to Smith Travel Research, for the 12 months ending in December 2004 versus the 12 months ending in December 2003, demand in the segment increased 5.2 percent, compared with a 0.5 percent increase in supply for the same time period. RevPAR forecasts for the segment show increases through 2006, and existing pipelines indicate a healthy appetite among developers for product that fits into the lower-upscale category.

Cambria Suites: The Product

Enter Cambria Suites. By virtue of its design, amenities and services, Cambria Suites is uniquely positioned to deliver guests.

Each hotel will typically offer 100 to 150 units -- each 25 percent larger than industry standard with a stylish, contemporary design. All rooms will be suites, each with separate living/work room and bedroom areas. In room amenities will include luxury bedding and linens; plasma TVs; refrigerator and microwave; movable, ergonomic desk; and high speed wireless Internet access. Upgraded suites will also be available.

Public spaces at Cambria Suites brand hotels will be open, contemporary and inviting. The Lobby will include club lounge seating and a large screen "media wall"; a lounge serving liquor, wine, beer and non-alcoholic beverages; and a coffee bar serving premium coffees. Food and beverage options will also include a paid-for hot and cold breakfast buffet and a 24/7 convenience store stocked with food and sundry items. Each hotel will also include an expanded fitness facility, an indoor pool and more than 1,000 square feet of meeting space. Additional business services include onsite faxing, copying and printing as well as multiple lobby power/Internet ports and high speed wired and wireless Internet access.

Cambria Suites' exterior design will be distinguished by rich, detailed use of brick, stone and stainless steel accents, with a dramatic, glass-walled signature tower containing the two-story lobby.

The cost per key to develop Cambria Suites is estimated at $63,000, excluding land and soft costs. Average daily rate is projected to be in the $100 range.

As part of the brand roll out, a dedicated team of franchise sales professionals has been recruited and will focus solely on the development of Cambria Suites. This stellar group of top-notch professionals knows this segment, this industry and their territories inside and out.

Cambria Suites: The Guest

Cambria Suites is designed to appeal primarily to business travelers, although the brand's amenities are well suited to leisure travel as well. At each stage of its conception and development, Cambria Suites has been designed to cater to the specialized needs of the business traveler. The Cambria Suites guest works hard, plays hard -- and is willing to pay more for a personalized, upgraded lodging experience.

When Opportunity Knocks...Will You Be Ready?

By Kyle Stevenson

Which hotel opportunity can you purchase with the greatest potential for profit? Is it the one with a tremendous location, and verified revenues and profits? Does it have outstanding ADR and occupancy, tremendous demand generators, minimal competition? If you owned a hotel like that, would you sell it at a bargain, discount price so your buyer would make a lot of money?

Of course you wouldn't. You would probably want the highest price you could get for the property. If you are on the buying side, you might have to wait years before you could recoup your investment on one of these fully priced locations.

So, where are the bargains? Clearly they are going to be distressed situations where your industry expertise can turn around the location and make it shine. Distressed properties offer some of the best opportunities for making a profit.

The problem with this approach is distressed properties are often sold quickly, or their problems appear so great Banks are not interested in financing them. If you buy a property at a foreclosure auction, for example, the financial history you need for a new loan is not available. If you are the successful bidder, you must post a non-refundable deposit immediately. Then your closing date comes only 10 days later! Unless you have hundreds of thousands of dollars sitting in the bank, you won't have time to close and you'll miss out on the opportunity.

When this kind of opportunity knocks, you need to be prepared. The winning bidder at these auctions has financing already lined up. This means the buyer has a relationship with a lender that will allow them to close quickly.

In a non-foreclosure situation, if the buyer is purchasing a troubled location suffering from bad management, then they also must have a strong banking relationship. Someone (the current or former owner) has already proven that this location can be mismanaged and fail. How will a Bank who just met you think you can turn it around?

Here is a To Do list for you to be prepared. If you plan on playing the game of turning around hotel properties, you need to play to win.

Hotel transaction volume of Hotel Brokers International increased 55 percent in the Fourth Quarter of 2004. The world's leading hotel brokerage organization reported 31 transactions with a total sales volume of $117,500,000 for the period versus 20 sales totaling $55 million for the Fourth Quarter of 2003.

In all of 2004, HBI closed 110 transactions for a total sales volume of nearly $325,000,000 versus 78 transactions with a total sales volume of $226,000,000 for 2003, an increase of more than 43 percent.

Dick Lopez, CHB, president of Hotel Brokers International, stated, "This heightened deal-making activity is indicative of the current market, as buyers purchase hotels in order to take advantage of the improving economic environment and lodging sector. It is a great time to be a buyer or seller in the lodging real estate business, and, as always, HBI brokers are providing the industry with valuable leadership. When Opportunity Knocks...Will You Be Ready? Continued from page 4

Get Your Financial House in Order

Before you go out tossing around offers on everything in sight, gather all your personal and corporate financial information and organize it so a lender can understand it. Start by getting your last three years of personal tax returns. Then gather the last three years of tax returns for every business you own. Even if you are not the only, or majority owner, include those businesses in this process as well.

Then prepare a year to date financial statement for each business. Make sure it is no more than 90 days old. Our established clients do this every quarter to be prepared. Be sure to include important statistics such as ADR, occupancy, RevPAR, etc. The more detailed the better.

You also need to keep a current personal financial statement. Banks are going to look at it, and they'll want to see your personal credit report. You need to review the credit report yourself at least annually to make sure it is correct. Please don't wait until you apply for a loan to clean up any past due accounts. Do it now so the lender will see you being responsible for your obligations. Things do happen in people's lives, and lenders may understand. If you are about to buy a multi-million dollar business with real estate, however, you ought to make sure your credit cards and car loans are current.

Any lender you approach will silently evaluate how you manage your financial information. If you choose to show up for a loan with only a shoebox full of receipts, you will be fighting an uphill battle, and needlessly.

Establish Banking Relationships

The time to meet your lender is before you need their money, not the day of the foreclosure auction! Armed with your detailed financial package, meet with a lender familiar with your industry. Ask your lawyer, accountant, or suppliers for an introduction. Ask them questions about their experience with hotel loans. Find out how aggressive they would be if you wanted to buy a closed location.

Create Lead Sources to Find Properties

Good opportunities don't break down your door to find you. Network with everyone you can think of in your industry: franchisors, suppliers, lenders, business brokers, and even other hotel owners. Let them know you are looking for a property. Think of ways you can help these people with information you have that could benefit them. The more people you help in your network, the more likely they will call you first when they find something.

Prepare in Advance to Document Your Turnaround Plan

Even a one- or two-page summary of your plans will help lenders believe in you. If you can explain why a hotel will do better when you are running it, you will have a better chance at arranging financing. If you can make a logical explanation as to why it failed or underperformed under the prior owner, your funding source will be impressed with your knowledge and understanding of the situation.

Summary

The time to plan for a great opportunity is long before it comes along. Unless you want to pay top dollar for everything you buy, follow the steps here and be prepared. You'll want to be ready to move quickly when you need to act. Trust me, that's what your successful competitors are doing!
